Grade School Hobby Leads to Successful Hat Shop Career

By ANNE B. McFELLAN

"Love that hat" might well be the trademark of Cele Hynson Conway, a local girl who has made good in the field of hat design.

Daughter of Mrs. Frank W. Hynson and the late Mr. Hynson, Cele is the owner of a thriving hat business in Narberth. Only 30 years old, she first became interested in dress and hat designing while a pupil of the Ardmore Ave. Grade School.

In the three years since she started out on her own, she has built up her clientele to more than 500 customers, and has increased her yearly income by more than 1000 percent.

"I had only a few dollars," Cele recalled this week, "and my friends said I was foolish to try to go into business without money or backing. But I spent what I had on material to make a couple of hats. Then I sold the hats and used half the money to buy a few more hats. That's how I started out, and I've never regretted it."

The bulk of her business comes from Main Line women, but others, from as far away as Boston, New York and Washington, make special trips to her shop at 109 Forrest Ave., Narberth.

Some of them don't even bother making a personal appearance. They simply write a short description of their outfit, sometimes including a sample of the cloth, and leave it to Cele.

Starting out as a dress designer, after a brief career in the candy business, Cele "happened into" the hat business about seven years ago, and liked it so well she stayed in it. She worked for Helen Patterson and Elsie Sparks, both of Ardmore, and for Rene, in Philadelphia. In 1944 she decided it was "now or never," and opened up her own business in her parents' home in Oakmont.

For the next year and a half she had no time for anything but her business. She started in at 8 in the Safety Council Plans School Slogan Contest

Montgomery County Safety Council last week announced plans for a safety slogan contest in public, parochial and private schools. The contest, open to children from 6 to 16, will close September 26. Service clubs throughout the county have contributed prizes, the Council reported at its August meeting in Norristown.

Dr. Allen Harman, assistant county superintendent of schools, said that the school officials will help make the contest a success. Dr. Harman also reported that plans have been completed for a driver school for teachers, to be held in Norristown Senior High School, September 15 through September 19.

Main Line Playhouse Follows Traditions of Narberth Players

When the Main Line Playhouse opens its 1947-48 season this fall, it will have behind it a long tradition of successful shows presented by its predecessor, the Narberth Players, and a quick look backward at the Players' achievements would therefore seem in order at this time.

The Players disbanded in 1942 due to wartime conditions and it was not until late last spring that they reorganized as the Main Line Playhouse under the leadership of a newly elected president, Paul Goodyear, of Merion.

The group first started in 1930 when members of the Narberth Women's Community Club gave a play and had a lot of fun doing it. They decided if one play was that much fun they ought to go on with

Probe Road-Block at $150,000 Villanova Fire

Check License Numbers Of Sight-Seeing Motorists Who Blocked Roads

Police investigation of spectacular clogged highways followed a $150,000 fire in Villanova this week.

Firemen attempting to fight the blaze, which began early Sunday morning at "High Clear," Villanova home of John M. Taylor, found the roadways impeded by motorists who came to watch. At one point the hose, connected to a fireplug two miles from the house, was cut when a passing motorist rode over it, and almost an hour was lost before another connection could be made.

The fire began shortly before midnight Saturday night. It was 1:10 A. M. before the fire companies of Bryn Mawr, Ardmore, Radnor and West Conshohocken were able to piece together enough hose to reach from the nearest fireplug.

Fire Marshal Harvey Benson said the situation, which aroused widespread alarm in the district, was a police matter, and must be settled by the Lower Merion police department.

The police department, following a conference on Monday, said that car license numbers had been taken and would be checked through Harrisburg.

"In many cases," a police spokesman said, "the numbers will turn out to be those of volunteer firemen. They ride in their own cars to the scene, and then take up their duties with their various fire companies. So each number will have to be checked first with Harrisburg and then with all the local fire companies, to find who had a legitimate reason for being on the scene, and who didn't. After that, we'll see what can be done."

Taylor, president of the Taylor Fiber Company, of Port Kennedy, Pa., was visiting his family at their summer home in Tuckernuck, Mass. The alarm was first given by a neighbor, Miss Ann Titus. Since it followed an electrical storm, Benson declared the blaze might have been set off by a bolt of lightning.

The flames apparently started on the top floor of the three-story house, and worked down into the long end of the T-shaped structure. Furniture was moved to safety on the front lawn, some of it carried down ladders from the second floor. Taylor's valuable stamp collection, in a fireproof vault in the cellar, escaped injury. Valuable paintings and silver were transferred to the Titus residence, and a police guard was placed over the furnishings.

INDIAN CREEK BRIDGE IN WYNNEWOOD APPROVED

Lower Merion Township's request to construct a new bridge across Indian Creek on Bowman Ave., Wynnewood, was approved this week by the State Water and Power Resources Board.

Walter L. Rosengarten, superintendent of highways, said yesterday the request was made because the culvert was entirely too small. The present sixth foot width of the bridge is not adequate to handle the flow of water during storms when the water floods, he said.

The new plans include a 20 foot span arch and construction will probably start next year, Rosengarten said.

RAY MORRIS

Ray Morris Wins At Narberth Nets

Defeats Jim Schnaars; Perchonock and Hoffman Take Doubles

The finals of the Keystone State Clay Court Men's Singles and Doubles Tournament held at the Narberth Tennis Club, Saturday and Sunday, proved to be as interesting as its opening rounds. The winner, Ray Morris, University of North Carolina, seeded No. 6, defeated Jim Schnaars, captain of the Haverford College Tennis Team, seeded No. 7, in three sets, 6-2, 6-3, 6-3.

Two upsets occurred in the fourth round and from then on the gallery was on edge. Schnaars pulled the surprise of the tournament by defeating Dave Perchonock, Logan Tennis Club, 6-2, 6-3. Perchonock was seeded No. 1 in the large field of 67 players. Morris defeated Harry Hoffman, Rifle Club, seeded No. 2, in two sets, 6-2, 6-4.

The semi-finals brought a victory for Schnaars against Knute Krassenstein, 6-3, 6-3 and Morris against Ray McClung, 6-1, 6-0. Krassenstein was seeded No. 8 and McClung No. 5.

Finals of the men's singles, held on Saturday, were witnessed by a large gallery. The tournament was interrupted by a heavy rain but the courts were rolled and put into condition after an hour and fifteen minutes and play resumed. Morris, the winner, was presented with a portable radio and the runner-up, Schnaars, received an electric razor.

On Sunday, the finals of the men's doubles took place. Because of heavy rains the night before, the court was very slow, comparable to playing on grass courts. (Continued on Page Four)

Coughing and choking, the little girl managed to gasp, "bobby pin," when her mother rushed into the room. Mrs. White immediately understood what had happened, and made the youngster eat bread washed down with water.

A friend, Mrs. Betty Baltz, of 37 Cricket Ave., who was visiting the Whites, called a taxicab and rushed Janet to Bryn Mawr Hospital where officials said the bread treatment had been sufficient to avert danger.

Model's Husband Held for Court

Neighbor Accuses King, Who Pleaded for Wife in Earlier Action

Bernard King, 24, of 124 Ardmore Ave., Ardmore, whose blonde wife, a model, was freed last month when he told a Montgomery County court that he was responsible for her stealing, was himself arrested by Lower Merion police on Tuesday.

King, a former tree surgeon and house painter, was charged with assault and battery and larceny, by a neighbor, Mrs. Rosine Donahue, who lives in the same apartment house.

Mrs. Donahue told police she had been visiting the Kings on Monday evening. When she accused the husband of taking $11 from her purse he became abusive, she said, and hit her over the head with a bottle.

King was held in $500 bail for the present term of court by Magistrate Joseph E. Allen, Jr. A month ago King's wife was arrested on the complaint of another neighbor, who charged her with stealing $1000 worth of jewelry. When the case came to trial Judge William F. Dannehower said it appeared that Mrs. King's chief fault was "loving her husband too much," and dismissed her with a fine of $1 and costs. King, who had testified that he plagued her for money and was a "good-time Charlie," promised the court he would get another job and straighten himself out, as a condition of his wife's freedom.

GOLF REPLACES MEETING OF MAIN LINE KIWANIS

Members of the Main Line Kiwanis Club, of Ardmore, participated in a golf match August 19, instead of a regular meeting listed for that date. The match was under the direction of Walter Irwin and James McInyre.

A meeting of the Youth Service Committee preceded the meeting.

The action grew out of a Bill in Equity introduced by Mrs. Eleanor Taylor, Burke, of Rose Valley, who asked that an injunction be issued against MacDade, to restrain him from the use of stamps, telephones, stationery and County personnel in the pursuance of his political campaign. Foretelling the introduction into evidence of listed misuses of County facilities, MacDade and his lawyer took advantage of the legal verbiage contained in the prayer for injunction, to forestall further action. Judge Dannehower, declaring that the letter of the law had been satisfied and that he could see no further evidence of danger to the taxpayers, dismissed (Continued on Page Six)

Engineer of Norristown Commuter's Train Killed In Collision

Eight Bala-Cynwyd residents and one West Manayunk man were injured last Thursday afternoon, when the crowded Norristown local train on which they were passengers, rammed into the tender of a steam engine backing down the same Pennsylvania Railroad track near 30th Street Station.

The engineer of the four-car commuter train, J. D. Klingeman, of Norristown, was crushed to death in his telescoped cab, and 17 other passengers were also injured in the collision which took place at 4:55 P. M. at the height of the going-home suburban rush.

The accident occurred on a wide curve north of the Spring Garden Street Bridge west of the Schuylkill, just 12 minutes after the commuter train left Broad Street Station. Traffic on the line was delayed more than a half-hour while the wrecked cars were being removed.

The force of the collision obliterated the first five feet of the steel leading car on the commuter train, and crumpled the rest of the leading end back to the first truck of the car, which was jammed into the last wheels of the steam engine tender.

The first car was a combination baggage-and-smoker type. Otherwise the casualty list would undoubtedly have been higher, railroad officials said.

The injured persons were taken to the Presbyterian, Philadelphia General and University Hospitals, and the 230 shaken but uninjured passengers were transferred to other trains.

The injured included the following local residents: William W. Smith, 43, 444 Conshohocken State Rd., Cynwyd, cut left eyebrow; Walter Knipe, 39, 334 Landlillo Rd., Bala, several loose teeth and contusions of the lip; Edgar C. Bisbee, 76, 34 Llanberis Rd., Bala-Cynwyd, contusion and abrasion of the right eye; John Butler, 5, 136 Upland Drive, Bala-Cynwyd, cut and bruised over eye; Elizabeth Poole, 34, 137 Union Ave., Bala, bruises of the body; H. D. McLennan, 34, 22 Conshohocken State Rd., Bala-Cynwyd, lacerations of left eye; Petro Salvo, 60, 43 Madison Ave., West Manayunk, broken nose; Edwin C. Blair, 56, 12 Bala Ave., Bala-Cynwyd, contusions of right leg, and Harvey C. Hodgson, 70, 34 Lodges Lane, Bala-Cynwyd, contusions of nose.
